NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Eye of the Tiger is a song performed by the rock group Survivor and made famous as the theme from the film Rocky III.

This arrangement is fairly easy to rehearse, but it is suggested that the rhythm section practice separately and focus on aiming for a steady dance-like beat, with consistency and drive throughout. Throughout the chart, the rhythm section should be driving steadily but staying dynamically beneath the wind instruments. The eighth notes are to be played even and with energy and forward motion. At the beginning, ensure that the articulations are properly executed and that the rhythmic punches are tight. The marcato or rooftop accent (▲) is played detached—think “daht.” Work on getting the ♯ effect at measures 4 and 5 and 7 and 8 dynamically balanced.

At measure 45, the rhythmic pattern ends and a 4-bar rhythmic statement is introduced which builds gradually into measure 69, when a cascading interlude for the winds is introduced. Ensure that this section is played legato until measure 77, when the original melody returns.

Enjoy!
